QUALIFICATIONS

- Applicants should have a MSc. (or be close to completion) in management, or similar. He/she is expected to possess strong analytical skills and have a commitment to research excellence.
- He/she should be curious and rigorous; He/she should also display a high level of team-spirit.
- Applicants should be preferably fluent in both English and French.

The PhD student will be supervised by Pr. Caroline Sargis-Roussel and Pr. Cécile Belmondo.

We are looking for candidates whose research interests are related to strategy and the understanding of how strategy processes unfold. In a context of strategy massification, traditional approaches of strategy processes are evolving towards more transparency and inclusion using technologies to involve the crowd. Even if developing fast, academics still have to explore in-depth open strategizing processes, and their dilemma, challenges, facilitators and consequences. These processes are social by nature, technologically supported, materially mediated and embedded in the organizational context. Thus, the PhD candidate should have an appetite for sociological approaches (Practice theory), strategy-as-practice perspective, and good knowledge of traditional strategy perspectives. From a methodological point of view, the PhD candidate is expected to be able to lead longitudinal qualitative field work / ethnography studies.

WORKING CONDITIONS

The selected applicant is expected to begin his/her assignment in September 2019. Gross salary will be competitive with other European research and academic institutions. The PhD student will be based either in Lille or in Paris (on the site of IESEG School of Management). The selected candidate will be enrolled at SESAME doctoral school (University of Lille). The PhD student will get all the means and support to engage in innovative business relevant research projects with high potential to get published in international peer-reviewed journals.
